TEXTS Perkins and Perkins. The American Tradition in Literature. Shorter “Concise” Edition, 11th edition. New York McGraw-Hill, 2007

COURSE GOALS (for instructor)

To introduce the diversity of voices that make up American literature
To discuss historic, literary, and cultural contexts of American literature
To model respect for varied responses during class discussion
To provide opportunities for oral presentations in small groups and in the class
To respond thoughtfully to students’ views as written in three essays
To encourage students to welcome the delicious ambiguity of the “difficult beauty” in literature

GOALS (for students)

1. To identify and locate American authors and their works in the American literary tradition
2. To recognize values and define themes in American literature
3. To think critically about and appreciate the complexity and diversity of serious literature
4. To enter into and continue a discussion about American literature, its themes and its style
5. To write essays that shape and extend this discussion, to cite research about our readings
6. To understand literal meanings and consider implications in figurative meanings
7. To tolerate—perhaps to welcome—a lack of closure, a deliberate ambiguity found in literature

GRADES Three essays @ 15% = 45%, Midterm =15%, Final = 20%, Participation = 20%

Regular and prompt attendance is required. Final grades may be lowered 1/3 (e.g., from a B- to a C+) for each absence after 3 permitted absences. Students should expect to spend 1-2 hours outside of class preparing for each hour in class.

QUIZZES may not be made up, but lowest quiz grade will be dropped.

ESSAYS Prompts for essays will be distributed within the first week of classes.

In Essay #1, offer your personal response or reaction to 1-3 readings.

In Essay #2 compare two works, focusing on character, relationships, setting, theme, or another literary element.

In Essay #3, working with a small research team, summarize a critical essay, present your findings to the class, and hand in a written summary. Sign up for an author (since Wharton) at any time on the sheet posted outside of Z-104. Submit essays at the start of class on the due date. (Third essay due date is the day of the reading.)

Grades on late papers may be lower. Please use 12 pt. font, 1 inch margins, and MLA citation and documentation format.

SPECIAL CONSIDERATIONS

If you have any concerns about this course (the readings, the assignments, the instructor, the classroom, etc.), please contact me right away so we can work together to make this introduction to American literature meaningful for you.

Students wanting special considerations in terms of class management or scheduling, please submit the appropriate documentation to your instructor as soon as possible.

Please study and follow the Moravian College policy on plagiarism and original work. Submit your own work; share your own ideas.

Course grade and all grades for participation, quizzes, tests, and papers will be assigned at the discretion of the instructor.
