UTOPIAS, DYSTOPIAS AND MANIFESTOS: THE IMAGINATION OF POLITICAL ALTERNATIVES

Moravian College/Political Science 355 (U2)/Fall 2008

utopia n [Utopia, imaginary and ideal country in Utopia (1516) by Sir Thomas More, fr. Gk an indefinitely remote place 2 often cap: a government and social conditions 3: an impractical scheme for social government dystopia n [NL, fr. dys+topia (as in utopia)] (ca. 1950) 1: an imaginary place where people lead dehumanized and often fearful lives 2: ANTI-UTOPIA 2 ↓ dystopian

manifesto n, pl –tos or –toes [It, denunciation, manifest, fr. manifestare to manifest, fr. L, fr. manifestus] (1647): a written statement declaring publicly the intentions, motives or views of its issuer. Merriam Webster's Collegiate Dictionary, tenth edition.

Considerations of alternatives are often dismissed as utopian. This dismissal suggests that such visions are both needed and feared as all utopias convey a critical perspective on present ideas and practices. Sometimes expressing criticism is safer in the form of a utopia, a story about a place that does not exist (u-topos: no place), or at least not yet (no time). Conversely, manifestos are perceived as more threatening because they signal a prelude to action aimed at rocking the boat. In either case, an author inserts a vision into a world that others may perceive as smoothly or inevitably transitioning from past to future. Such visions multiply the available accounts of what is possible or desirable. Or, in the case of dystopias (the imagination of worst possible societies), we may become aware of dangerous tendencies present in our own experiences. To envision alternatives is to gain a critical distance from familiar and taken-for-granted worldviews such that new thoughts and new actions become possible. In this sense, we will trouble the distinction between “serious” and utopian political thought in order to consider the political significance of writing itself. The point of this course is not to be simply a reader of utopias, dystopias, and manifestos but to participate in these genres by writing. Writing an original political vision (in the genre of your choice) is the organizing goal and final project for this course. The central text in this course is yours.

We will take approximately ten minutes to write at the start of every class. The short essay questions below are intended as stepping-stones toward your final original political vision. In-class writing is evaluated as a form of engagement.

- 8/27 What do you fear and what do you desire?
- 8/29 What aspects of life can be ordered? What is the role of imagination in political discourse?
- 9/3 What is a utopia? (genre)
- 9/5 What does your utopia need to achieve? What is the highest value of the society you imagine?
- 9/10 What is the frame of your utopian account? How do we progress from reality to fiction?
- 9/12 What is the foundational myth or tradition that conveys legitimacy to the arrangements within your envisioned society?
- 9/17 Who is the main or average protagonist of your utopia?
- 9/19 How does a part of your vision relate to the whole? For example, labor in relationship to the economic arrangements.
- 9/24 What is the dark underbelly of your vision? How might this positive vision go wrong?
- 9/26 To which of our readings is your utopia most indebted?
- 10/1 What are the collective implications of your worst fear?
- 10/3 Are there current political arrangements that strike you as dystopian?
- 10/8 Are there dystopian aspects of everyday personal behavior? How do political imagination and visionary writings become persuasive?
- 10/10 What is the crisis or event that frames the decline into your dystopian vision?
- 10/15 What is the role of language in your dystopia?
- 10/17 What is the role of technology in your dystopia?
- 10/22 What is the timeline of your dystopia?
- 10/24 What is a dystopia? (Genre)
- 10/29 What lesson must your dystopian vision teach? How does your dystopia attempt to normalize dysfunction or injustice?
- 10/31 What is a manifesto? (Genre)
- 11/5 Who is the audience?
- 11/7 Does a manifesto seek to transform the audience? If so, how?
- 11/12 How does a manifesto invoke the past, the present, and the future?
- 11/19 What is the central goal or project of your manifesto?
- 11/21 What is the assumed philosophy of history that informs the manifesto's vision?
- 12/3 What aspect of someone else's liberty would you sacrifice in pursuit of your own idea(s)?

Engagement

A - Critical, innovative and careful readings; substantial and consistent notes or written preparations for discussion; frequent and illuminating text-based contributions; contribution of discussion-shaping questions; careful engagement of the arguments of others; support and promotion of positive discussion dynamics.

B - Complete and careful readings; consistent notes or written preparations for discussion; lively, substantial, and argumentative text-based contributions; contribution of independent questions, engagement of the arguments of others.

C - Incomplete or superficial readings; minimal notes or written preparations for discussion; regular (at least once per meeting) discussion participation.

D - Incomplete or missing readings; lack of notes or written preparations for discussion; mostly passive presence.

F - Persistent vegetative state; low-level trance; slightly elevated body temperature.

What you need to know about this course

- Political theory relies heavily on close readings of texts. Always bring your book or article.
- Analysis, not summary, is the point of our reading. Underline important passages, take notes, ask questions, and come to class prepared to participate in discussions. A good question is an excellent contribution.
- What does the text say? What does it not say? What does it imply? When we read political theories we are looking for arguments, implications, and complications. Do not regard the text as a smooth surface.
- Don't be afraid to change your mind. Discussion is generative when it allows all participants to voice a position, to receive feedback from others, to reconsider, and to possibly revise the initial claim.
- If you're finding it difficult to participate in discussions, please contact me. I am happy to help you strategize. You should know that I consider e-mail exchanges, discussions in office hours, and other forms of engagement when determining final grades.

1) I invite you to visit my office hours. Please be in touch with any questions and thoughts you may have about our work together. You can also contact me by e-mail at haddad@moravian.edu.

2) We will discuss all assignments two weeks in advance of a given due date. I am happy to help you with outlines. All assignments must be completed.

3) Expect to work six hours on average outside of class per week. Some weeks the reading load will be lighter, some weeks it will be considerably heavier.

4) Students with a documented learning disability who desire accommodations for this course must first visit the Office of Learning Services (ext. 1510) and follow college procedures on receiving accommodations.

5) I do not accept late assignments, except in appropriately documented emergency situations. For the sake of equity, please do not ask for special treatment.

6) Plagiarism will result in failure of the assignment in this class. Please see Moravian College Student Handbook for an account of academic honesty. See <http://www.moravian.edu/studentlife/handbook/academic2.htm>

7) Please support a culture of discussion: turn off your phone, do not bring food to class, learn the names of other students, engage others intellectually, take responsibility for the quality of our collective work.
