Italian 105 is designed for students who have studied and completed Italian 100 or its equivalent. There are three classes per week and it is expected that students spend as much time as needed outside the class to complete the homework and language laboratory assignments. The course focuses on the four skills of speaking, reading, writing, and listening, as well as developing your knowledge and understanding of Italian culture. As these areas of language learning are interrelated, we will not study them separately, but rather as parts of one whole, which is the Italian language.

Goals of the course:

Communication in a foreign language means understanding what others say and transmitting your own message in such a way as to avoid misunderstandings. As you learn to do this, you will make the kind of errors that are necessary for acquiring the language. Do not hesitate to take risks and try out different hypotheses with the language. By the end of the course you will:

1. have heard about, reflected upon, and experienced some limited manifestations of different socio-cultural norms, and will be able to react with awareness of such differences;
2. be able to speak, creating original short sentences of your own by combining memorized phrases learned during the semester;
3. be able to manage short conversations in predictable, simple situations with persons used to dealing with non-native Italian speakers;
4. comprehend some short, learned utterances in predictable situations or in situations where the context strongly supports understanding;
5. read and comprehend the details of short texts in areas of practical needs or familiar content;

6. be able to read longer texts for general scope and key ideas;

7. be able to write short messages on familiar topics.

Organization of the course:

Italian 105 consists of four (4) major components which serve to strengthen and reinforce one another:

1. The class meetings.

The class meetings will take place on Mondays, Wednesday and Fridays. The professor will present the basic grammatical structures and language tasks and reinforce them through a variety of classroom activities. You will continue to practice and apply these concepts through homework and laboratory assignments.

2. Attendance and active participation.

3. Independent study.

Spend as much time as you need listening to the audio CDs in order to understand the material and complete the lab exercises. We strongly recommend 1-2 short sessions (20-30 minutes each) per week. Shorter and more frequent visits are more beneficial than a few, longer visits.

4. Homework assignments including (but not limited to) workbook exercises.

The workbook activities are coordinated with the structures, vocabulary, and concepts presented in your textbook. The key is to keep pace by doing your workbook exercises on a daily basis. By working every day you naturally reinforce what you have learned in class, you discover immediately if you are having problems, and you avoid the strain of overloading yourself. Listen carefully to the specific assignment your professor gives to you. At times you will be asked to complete all of the exercises while at other times, only selected exercises will be assigned.

Attendance:

Class attendance is crucial to the successful completion of this -- or any -- foreign language course. Language skill development requires frequent and sustained practice. Your attendance and participation in all components of the language program are required.

- Every student will be allowed to miss up to four (4) classes without losing points off their final grade (however, remember that your class participation grade will suffer beginning with the first absence, regardless of the reason for it).
- Every absence beyond four will result in a deduction of 1 point off the final grade. It is the responsibility of the student to reserve his/her 4 absences for those circumstances when missing class is unavoidable (i.e. illnesses, field trips, participation in sporting events, etc.) and to inform the professor as soon as possible about the reason for the absence.

- In case of extended absences the student should talk to Student Services or the Academic Dean who will contact the professor. Only if the Dean justifies the absences, they will be excused (and points will not be taken off).
- Remember: Requests to excuse absences at the end of the semester will not be considered. Students have the responsibility of keeping track of their own absences. No reminders will be given.
- Three (3) late arrivals to class (10 minutes or more) will be equivalent of one absence. Please, be respectful to other students and the professor, late arrivals are disrupting.

Absences cannot be used as an excuse for not doing homework: Students have the responsibility to talk to another student in the class or the professor about any assignment that needs to be completed for the following class.

Grading Policy:

Class participation (50 points), homework (50 points) and lab work (100 points) will constitute 200 points.

Lab work for each chapter needs to be handed in before or on the day of the quiz or exam. Students are expected to come prepared and to participate in class.

1 Exam – 200 points

Exams are given during the regular class period. These exams consist of listening comprehension, writing, reading and grammatical sections, as well as an oral component.

4 Chapter quizzes - 200 points

5 Quizzes - 100 points

2 Compositions - 100 points

For every late day that a composition is handed in, one letter grade will be deducted from the grade; for example, a composition due on Monday that would receive a B if handed in on time, will automatically receive a D if handed in on Wednesday. Saturday and Sunday count as two days.

Final exam – 200 points (comprehensive examination – chapters 7-12)

The oral final exam will be given during the final examination period. Students will schedule an appointment for the oral exam with their instructor. Specific information concerning the oral exam will be distributed later in the semester. The date of the written final exam will not be known until the beginning of March. Therefore, please wait to make any travel plans. Final exams will not be returned.

Scoring Guide:

Academic Behavior Code: Asking/Receiving help on exams, quizzes, composition or other work is prohibited and, thus, these actions will be considered a violation of the Academic Behavior Code. Don't forget to write the complete Academic Behavior Code on all work handed in for a grade.

Affermo di aver seguito il Codice di Comportamento Academico in questa prova.

Students are encouraged to contact me with any concern or doubt they might have. The best way to reach me is via e-mail.

Compositions must be typed, double spaced and at least one page in length.

In order to avoid distractions and interruptions, students are requested not to leave the classroom unless it is an emergency and to avoid the consumption of solid foods during the class. Cell phones and other electronic devices should be turned off upon entering. It is my hope that students understand this as part of my wish to achieve optimum class-time benefits.

Students with Disabilities or Special Needs: Students with diagnosed disabilities or special needs who require accommodations for this course must first contact Academic Support Services. Do this as soon as possible so that we may have a dialogue as to your needs and the recommended accommodations.
