TEXT Perkins . American Tradition in Literature. Concise Edition, 12th ed. New York McGraw-Hill, 2007,8.

COURSE GOALS (for instructor)

To introduce the diversity of voices that make up American literature

To discuss historic, literary, and cultural contexts of American literature

To model respect for varied responses during class discussion

To provide opportunities for oral presentations in small groups and in the class

To respond thoughtfully to students' views as written in essays

To encourage students to enjoy the challenge of serious literature

GOALS (for students)

1. To identify and locate American authors and their works in the American literary tradition
2. To recognize values and define themes in American literature
3. To think critically about and appreciate the complexity and diversity of American literature
4. To enter into and continue a discussion about American literature, its themes and its style
5. To write essays that shape and extend this discussion, to cite research about our readings
6. To understand literal meanings and consider implications in figurative meanings
7. To tolerate—perhaps to welcome--a lack of closure, a deliberate ambiguity found in some literature

GRADES Two essays @ 20% each. Midterm =20%. Participation (presentations, discussion, quizzes) = 20%. Final = 20%.

ATTENDANCE: Please arrive on time to every class. Your course grade may be lowered by one third for each class missed beyond three. Schedule this course when you can invest 2-3 hours outside of class preparing (studying headnotes and literature) for each class meeting—and possibly more time when tests and papers are due.

QUIZZES may be given at any time and may cover all readings and discussions to date. Quizzes may not be made up, but lowest quiz grade will be dropped. Include period notes, author headnotes, peer presentations, and the readings themselves

ESSAYS – MLA format, minimum length: 2 ½ pages, 1 inch margins on all pages, all in 12 point font

SPECIAL CONSIDERATIONS Students who wish to request accommodations in this class for a disability should contact Mr. Joe Kempfer, Assistant Director of Learning Services for Disability Support, 1307 Main Street (extension 1510).
Accommodations cannot be provided until authorization is received from the office of Learning Services.

PLAGIARISM Please study and follow the Moravian College policy on plagiarism and original work. Submit your own work; share your own ideas. Cheating or other forms of plagiarism will be reported and will result in failure of the assignment or the course. Repeat offenses could result in your dismissal from Moravian College.

GRADING All grades for the course and grades for participation, quizzes, tests, and papers will be assigned at the discretion of the instructor.

ELECTRONIC DEVICES should be turned off before coming to class. This includes i-pods, laptops, cell phones, pagers, etc.

SYLLABUS: reading schedule is tentative and partial. Changes will reflect student interests and needs. You are responsible to know about any changes and to get any notes prior to returning to class after an absence.

Tentative Schedule of Readings: Study headnotes for the period and for individual authors before class.
