COURSE OBJECTIVE: Accounting information systems generally lie at the foundation of an organization's entity-wide information systems. In this course, the intent is to provide you with the basic background and tools that will allow you to facilitate and/or assess the evolution of contemporary accounting information systems. This course will pursue a solid understanding of (1) the process by which effective systems are designed and developed, (2) the key components of an effective entity-wide internal control system, (3) the process by which efficient database design can be used to improve accounting information flow, and (4) the contemporary issues involved in providing assurance services for systems and database reliability.

HOMEWORK: All SAP projects are due on the dates as assigned and are worth 30 points each. Projects (SAP) turned in late will have 1 point deducted for each day it is late. If you know that you will have a conflict in turning homework in on time, it is your responsibility to clear it with the instructor so late points will not be deducted. All students are expected to adhere to the college policy on academic honesty as outlined in the Student Handbook accessible on the Moravian Web Page. In particular, you must do your own work for anything to be handed in and graded. It is O.K. to ask/work with other people, however, you must type your own solution to each problem/exercise except as noted in the individual projects. Team projects (SAP) must be typed and include the date and names of group members and are worth a maximum of 30 points each. If QuickBooks Pro is available we will explore the use of an accounting information system outlined in Part 4 of the book.
