

United States History Survey to 1877

Fall 2011

HIST 113 B

Monday-Wednesday, 1:10-2:20 pm

Moravian College

Comenius 305/PPHAC 335

Instructor: Dr. Sharon Sauder Muhlfeld

Office: Comenius 205

Office Hours: Mon. 11-12 am and by appointment

E-mail: smsm@moravian.edu

Course Introduction:

The task before us is quite large. In a course spanning several centuries, involving three continents and examining an array of people groups, many heralded historical events will inevitably slip through the cracks. Paul Revere's ride might go unheeded, Francis Scott Key's humming might be out of earshot, and Betsy Ross's sewing prowess might have to be acclaimed elsewhere. In their place we will select several new people and events to highlight, thus enlarging and reshaping the historical narrative for the period covered by our course.

Although much of our time will be spent examining sweeping movements and influential ideas, I intend to keep us grounded by devoting at least some time to the individual lives of several early Americans. My decision to integrate daily life with broad political and economic circumstances arises from two considerations. First, I know that many students find early American history frustrating because it seems irrelevant. I trust that uncovering real people doing and saying real things will enable you to better understand their world and its fundamental similarities to and differences from your own. Likewise, I hope that the past will become more than spectacle for you as you begin to see the seventeenth, eighteenth, and nineteenth centuries through the eyes of the people living during those years.

My second motivation for focusing on people draws attention to the overarching theme for the course. Colonial America was a face-to-face society, with individuals relying on personal connections to buy land, sell crops, run businesses, educate children, escape punishment, secure favor with the government, and operate churches. By 1877 newly expanded federal and state bureaucracies and institutions like railroad companies and investment banking houses had assumed control of many of these aspects of life that previously had been transacted between individuals. This course attempts to chart the transition from a face-to-face society to one governed increasingly by institutions and to measure this transition's impact on the lives of ordinary people.

Primary Sources:

To help you better understand what made these people tick, we will be examining some primary sources (i.e. memoirs, letters, transcripts of speeches). Reading primary sources can be a tricky thing. You will have to adjust to unfamiliar language and even more creative spelling, but I have confidence that the more you read, the more comfortable you will become with the writings of your fellow Americans.

It is also my intent that handling primary sources will introduce you to the task of the historian. History is not simply a collection of facts that historians spend their lives chasing. Rather historians carefully examine the existing evidence (primary sources) and present an argument about it, much like a lawyer appearing before a jury. The evidence, however, is not always immediately clear, requiring historians to analyze rigorously before reaching any conclusions about the past. For example, what might seem like a straightforward essay or travel narrative has to be inspected: What audience did the author intend to reach? How might the author have misread a situation? By the end of the course, I trust that asking such questions will seem natural to you.

These primary sources will also be at the heart of several of your assignments for this course. Three times throughout the semester, I will ask you to analyze several documents. Your job will usually include the following: summarize the documents, determine their context and significance, identify what you don't understand and how those missing pieces might help to clarify the source, and connect the documents to the broader course (ex: does the author seem to agree with the interpretations we talk about in class or you read in your textbook?). You do not need to write formally for these assignments (think of them as a primary source blog). Document analysis assignments will not be accepted late unless you have made arrangements with me in advance.

Writing:

While examining primary sources is an important part of the historian's job, another major segment is converting interpretations of the documents into coherent prose. Having analyzed primary material, this course will also enable you to practice the historian's craft through your written assignments. Again, writing history means making an argument and then supporting your claim using evidence from the past. Your first paper and the Midterm exam will specifically focus on practicing the skill of persuasive writing. Your second paper will bring all of your skills together: writing with an argument and analyzing primary sources.

Papers and Exams:

1. The first assignment will be on the book Facing East from Indian Country and is due in class on September 21. In this book Daniel Richter argues that "eastern Native people were anything but passive victims unable to change." For your 3-5 page paper you will discuss how they reinvented Indian country following the influx of European people and goods, focusing on the factors that shaped how they responded to the European presence. I will give you a more detailed assignment sheet during the first few days of class.

2. Midterm Examination. This exam will be in-class and will occur on October 5. The format for this exam will be True/False/Justify. The entire exam will consist of several statements to which you will respond either true or false and then justify your answer. Points will be awarded only upon how completely and persuasively you justify your answer, not upon whether you select true or false.
3. Your final paper will require you to use a Civil War document collection found online at <http://valley.vcdh.virginia.edu>. In 4-5 pages you will make an argument about everyday life during the Civil War in Franklin Co., PA and Augusta Co., VA. More details will be given later in the semester. The paper is due in class on November 30.
4. Final Examination. The final exam will be held on Friday, December 9 at 1:30 pm. The exam will consist of approximately a dozen short answer questions, covering material since the Midterm. You will be given three hours to take this exam.

Grades:

Quizzes	5%
Documents	12%
First paper	20%
Midterm	20%
Final paper	22%
Final exam	21%

Policies:

1. Participation: I have not included participation as a specific percentage of your grade, but it will significantly affect my overall evaluation of your performance in this course. Participation will affect your grade by as much as one third (ex: good participation will move your grade from a B+ to an A-; poor participation will reduce your grade from a B+ to a B). I realize that some of you are more reticent than others, so participation in discussion will not be the only basis for my evaluation, but your insightful comments and questions are the easiest way to indicate to me that you have thought about the material and are prepared for class. Each class will include both lecture and discussion so there will be plenty of opportunities to make your voice heard. For those of you who are naturally shy, I suggest that you come to class having already thought about what you can contribute ahead of time. I prefer to not call randomly on students, but I will resort to that tactic if you are persistently silent.
2. Attendance: Attendance will also factor into my evaluation of your class participation. Missing more than two classes without written permission from

- the health center or the dean will automatically result in a lowering of your grade. Should you be absent for health or personal reasons, your written excuse should be delivered to me on your first day back. Any absence (even those without good excuse) should be reported or explained to me.
3. Your two papers will be accepted late but will be reduced by a third of a grade for every day that the assignment is late (including weekends and breaks). First papers receiving a grade lower than a C- must be rewritten unless the low grade is a result of being late. The student must also consult with me before rewriting. For the first paper, students receiving a grade of C+, C, or C- have the option to rewrite (again, unless the grade has been altered by lateness) but only after consulting with me. In both cases, I will average the two grades together. No rewrites will be accepted for the first paper after October 31.
  4. Plagiarism will not be tolerated. Plagiarism occurs whenever you use someone else's words or ideas without putting them in quotation marks and citing their work in a footnote. The most egregious forms of plagiarism occur when students copy entire paragraphs or sentences from another source and try to pass them off as their own, but copying short phrases is just as illegal. Simply changing a few words from another author's paragraph or sentence does not get you off the hook for plagiarism—you have still pilfered words and ideas. Moravian's plagiarism policy is that you will either fail the entire course or fail the assignment. I have found that most students who have resorted to plagiarism in the past did so out of desperation, fearing that their paper would be poor or late. Please remember, however, that both of these conditions would be preferable to academic dishonesty, which affects not only your grade but your overall academic record as well.
  5. You are responsible for keeping hard copies of all of your work. Electronic submissions that fail to reach me in a compatible form will still be counted late. In general I discourage electronic submissions, but if for some reason you do send me an assignment via e-mail, I will always acknowledge the message. If you don't get a response from me, it means I haven't received your work, and I will expect a hard copy of the assignment the next class period.
  6. All electronic devices should be turned off and remain invisible for the duration of the class period unless permission is granted by the professor.
  7. I reserve the right to alter this syllabus should the need arise during the semester.

Readings:

The schedule of readings accompanies the course outline listed below. Readings are to be completed by class time on their scheduled date. Your papers and some exam material will be based on these readings, and I will expect you to be able to converse in class about them. Please note that you will receive some primary documents at various points in the semester, which will also be part of the reading load for certain days even though they don't appear on the syllabus below. Several times throughout the semester I will also give short quizzes on the reading. If you miss one of these quizzes you can't retake it, but I will drop the lowest quiz score before giving you a final quiz grade. Most of the readings are from the two books listed below except several articles, "Rebel against Rebel," by Woody Holton and which are available on reserve at Reeves Library. I encourage you to make copies of these articles so you can bring them to class and use them for assignments. The following books are available at the bookstore:

Give Me Liberty!, Eric Foner

Facing East from Indian Country, Daniel Richter

Course Outline

Aug. 29: Course Introduction

Aug. 31: Indians of North America

Reading: Facing East, pp. 1-68

Sept. 5: No Class: Labor Day

Sept. 7: European Overseas Expansion

Reading: Give Me Liberty, pp. 16-41

Documents: George Percy and John Smith

Sept. 12: The Chesapeake from 1607-1660

Reading: Facing East, pp. 69-78

Give Me Liberty, pp. 43-62

*Document Analysis #1 due (George Percy and John Smith)***

Sept. 14: Puritan Outsiders in New England

Reading: Give Me Liberty, pp. 62-77

Sept. 19: King Philip's War and Bacon's Rebellion

Reading: Facing East, pp. 90-109

Sept. 21: Eighteenth-century slavery and the settlement of the Deep South

Reading: Give Me Liberty, pp. 125-140

*First Paper Due***

Sept. 26: Mid Atlantic Colonies: Urban Centers, Poverty, Religion, and Family Life

Reading: Facing East, pp. 79-90
Give Me Liberty, pp. 85-94

Sept. 28: Westward Expansion and the Seven Years War

Reading: Facing East, pp. 164-188
Give Me Liberty, pp. 158-166

Oct. 3: The Causes of the American Revolution

Reading: Facing East, pp. 189-216
“Rebel Against Rebel,” by Woody Holton (on reserve)
Give Me Liberty, 167-190

Oct. 5: Midterm Exam

Oct. 10: Fall Break: No Class

Oct. 12: A Revolution for Whom?

Reading: Facing East, pp. 216-223
Give Me Liberty, 190-200

Oct. 17: Forming the Constitution

Reading: Give Me Liberty, pp. 201-212, 235-257

Oct. 19: A Midwife's Tale (movie)

Oct. 24: The Early Republic: Republicanism, Hamilton vs. Jefferson

Reading: Give Me Liberty, pp. 230-233, 268-281

Oct. 26: Internal and External Threats to the New Nation

Reading: Facing East, pp. 223-236
Give Me Liberty, pp. 281-301
*Document Analysis #2 due (Midwife's Tale)***

Oct. 31: Industrialization, mill culture, and labor movements

Reading: “Building a Community of Labor” by Thomas Dublin (reserve)
Documents: “Susan...in the Lowell Mills,” “Lowell's Female Workers”
*First Paper Rewrites due***

Nov. 2: The Market Revolution: transportation, industrialization, politicization

Reading: Give Me Liberty, ch. 9

Nov. 7: Andrew Jackson and the Second Party System

Reading: Give Me Liberty, pp. 349-369

Nov. 9: Second Great Awakening and Reform Movements

Reading: Give Me Liberty, pp. 416-420

Nov. 14: Abolitionism and Women's Rights

Reading: Give Me Liberty, pp. 420-440

Documents: Mary Reynolds and Frederick Douglass

Nov. 16: Nineteenth-century slavery and the Plantation South

Reading: Give Me Liberty, ch. 11

*Document Analysis #3 due (Reynolds and Douglass)***

Nov. 21: Westward expansion, Cherokee Removal, and Manifest Destiny

Reading: Give Me Liberty, pp. 447-456

Nov. 23: Thanksgiving break: No class

Nov. 28: The Union Dissolves

Reading: Give Me Liberty, pp. 456-479

Nov. 30: The Civil War

Reading: Give Me Liberty, ch. 14

*Second Paper due***

Dec. 5: Whose Reconstruction?

Reading: Give Me Liberty, ch. 15

Dec. 7: Conclusion and Review

Friday, Dec. 9: Final Exam, 1:30-4:30 pm

