Instructor: Prof. Robert Fillman Office: Zinzendorf 102 Office Hours: Tuesdays and Thursdays, 12:30 p.m. to 1:10 p.m., Telephone: TBA or by appointment. Email: rfillman@moravian.edu Response Time: Typically, I respond to email within 24 hours of its receipt. However, on the weekend it may take up to 48 hours for you to receive a response. Email is almost always the best way to contact me.

Course Texts: The Bedford Handbook, 8th ed. by Diana Hacker, They Say/I Say by Graff; The Red Badge of Courage by Stephen Crane; Hiroshima by John Hersey; and various handouts provided by your instructor.

Other Required Materials: Multiple two-pocket folders (to hand in your assignments), access to your campus email, and a USB flash-drive.

Course Description:

"War Writing" introduces students to various types of writing on or inspired by war. Course readings will be in the form of poetry, short narratives or novel excerpts, and non-fiction (letters, essays, speeches, etc.). The hope is that students will not only be emotionally responsive to this powerful writing, but will think about it critically (paying particular attention to its form, purpose, context, style, etc.).

This course's objective is to improve the writing skills of students, preparing them to write quality academic essays at the University level; thus, assignments will be derived from the course's topic. However, this is neither a literature nor a history course, so course readings and historical information will only serve as a "jumping-off" point for discussion. Instruction will consist of some lectures, in-class writing, guided peer-review workshops, and discussion sessions, while essays will give students a sampling of various rhetorical modes.

Course Outcomes:

In addition to all items mentioned on the Writing 100 GUIDELINES sheet, students will....

- 1. Write four academic essays that present and support ideas in an organized, coherent way, paying particular attention to purpose for writing and the intended audience.
- 2. Demonstrate critical thinking about their subjects, the sources they choose, and their own writing.
- 3. Locate, evaluate, and select appropriate supporting information and sources and integrate that supporting information effectively into their writing.
- 4. Understand the importance of writing as a process (pre-writing, drafting, revising, and post-evaluative writing).
- 5. Be able to actively engage in collaborative peer-review workshops and provide quality feedback to peers.

Method of Evaluation:

The student's final grade will be determined on the basis of a 300 point system. Below you will find what constitutes a grade on the traditional A through F scale. The assignments for the course and their values are also listed.

- A Excellent and substantial academic paper
- $\mathbf{B}$  Competent academic paper
- $\mathbf{C}-\mathbf{Basic}$  academic paper
- D Marginal or deficient academic paper
- $\mathbf{F}$  Failing paper

Composition of the Student's Grade:

| Essay 1 – Argumentation essay                  | 45 points (15%)  |
|--|------------------|
| Essay 2 – Explication essay                    | 45 points (15%)  |
| Essay 3 – Critical Essay                       | 45 points (15%)  |
| Essay 4 – Research essay                       | 75 points (25%)  |
| Active and constructive participation in class | 30 points (10%)  |
| Peer review sessions and corresponding work    | 30 points (10 %) |
| Homework assignments, tutorials, and exercises | 30 points (10%)  |

Grade Scale:

The following are the cut-offs for final semester grades:

| 280  points = A   | 240  points = B-  | 180  points = D          |
|-------------------|-------------------|--------------------------|
| 270  points = A-  | 230 points = $C+$ | 179 points & below = $F$ |
| 260 points = $B+$ | 220 points $=$ C  |                          |
| 250  points = B   | 210  points = C-  |                          |

Attendance and Lateness to Class:

It is expected that students attend all classes and arrive by the designated start time. I know, however, that life cannot be so rigidly planned and that things sometimes happen to prevent your coming to class. If you know ahead of time that you will miss a class, it is your responsibility to let me know and to make arrangements to hand-in any assignments. You are responsible for all material assigned or covered in any class you miss, whether the absence is excused or not.

Because this course is a "work-shop" course which requires active participation, absences severely compromise a student's chance for success. Students who miss more than three class meetings (for any reason) are subject to a deduction of a full letter grade for every absence beyond the third. Two "lates" (5 minutes or more) constitute one absence.

Deadlines:

Written work is due at the beginning of class on the due-date listed on the assignment sheet. Late papers will NOT be accepted. However, sometimes the unexpected happens. You may, if necessary, make arrangements with me for an extension. You must approach me about these arrangements before the due-date and provide sufficient reason. Extensions will be considered on an individual and assignment-by-assignment basis. All assignments must be handed in by the prearranged extension date or they will result in a grade of a zero.

Requirements of the Course and Expectations of your Instructor

For success in the course, it is expected that all students will:

- 1. Complete, on time, all assigned work from They Say/I Say and The Bedford Handbook.
- 2. Complete all course readings and be prepared to discuss them in class.
- 3. Complete, on time, all essay projects. Each will include, at a minimum:
  - prewriting committed to paper (whether by hand or on the computer)
  - a first or "rough" draft of an essay, though still a "complete" draft
  - at least one revision plan
  - at least one significantly revised draft (sometimes more will be required)
  - peer review feedback from group members (and related assignments)
  - a neat and correctly formatted final draft
  - a copy of which is to be submitted electronically
  - some post-evaluative writing in response to your final draft reader's evaluation.

(All components of each project must be ready at the beginning of class as assigned. And all must be submitted in a two-pocket folder.)

- 4. Participate actively and constructively in class discussions.
- 5. Participate actively and constructively in small-group workshop sessions.
- 6. Have at least one reviewing session with a Writing Center tutor.
  - a. All students must schedule a session to work with a Writing Center tutor for at least one essay assignment. Failure to do so will result in the loss of a full letter grade from the student's final grade for the term.
  - b. Of course, students are encouraged to schedule appointments with Writing Center tutors for all major essay projects.
  - c. The Writing Center is located in a building that is not accessible to persons with mobility impairments. If you need the services of the Writing Center, please call 610-861-1392.

Disability Services

Students who wish to request accommodations in this class for a disability should contact Mr. Joe Kempfer, Assistant Director of Learning Services for Disability Support, 1307 Main Street (extension 1510). Accommodations cannot be provided until authorization is received from the office of Learning Services
