J. Richard Piper: The Major Nation-States in the European Union
 David M. Wood, Birol A. Yesilada: The Emerging European Union

Other readings:

One magazine: The Economist

Course objective:

The objective of the course is to introduce students to the full scope of political changes that have occurred in Europe since the end of WWII. The gradual development of the European Union and its various enlargements will constitute the framework of this course. Through the study of this development, students will hopefully understand how the complexity of the political relationships between the European states is largely due to the variety of their historical, cultural, social and economic differences. By studying this difficult process of political integration, students will also gain significant appreciation of the variety of the forces in presence, of the necessity to preserve those differences and of the need to channel their effects.

Course schedule*Monday January 16

Introduction to the course. What is Europe? Geographic, political and cultural definition of Europe. The notion of sovereignty and the impact of culture in politics. Research the main characteristics of the largest European countries in terms of geography, population, size of the economy, political regimes and social contexts. Research the main features of France, Germany, Italy and the United Kingdom.

Wednesday January 18

We start with a quick review of the division of Europe after WWII and its immediate consequences. The victorious Allies (the United States and the Soviet Union for the most part) are soon divided by their conflicting ideologies. The Americans want to promote democracy and capitalism while the Soviets want to impose communism and central planning. The European countries are caught in the middle of the conflict. The Communists take over in Czechoslovakia, the Cold War intensifies and it is going to divide the continent for the next forty years or so. Creation of the Council of Europe followed by NATO. The Soviets answer in kind and create the Warsaw Pact. Research the main characteristics of the Netherlands, Belgium, Luxembourg and Ireland in terms of geography, population, size of the economy and political regime. Read The Major Nation-States in the EU, chapter 1 pp.1-10.

Monday January 23

William Herrlinger gives an oral presentation on Germany.

As the Federal Republic of Germany becomes a new country and joins NATO, the Soviets crack down in Budapest. In Western Europe the UK refuses to cooperate. The necessity for French-German reconciliation leads to the first attempt at forming a Union: the European Coal and Steel Community. We discuss its creation and its institutions, the failure of the European Defense Community, and the success of the Treaty of Rome. Creation and launching of the EEC and Euratom. Research main characteristics of Portugal, Greece, Spain and Denmark in terms of geography, population, size of the economy and political regime Read The Major Nation-States in the EU chapter 2 pp. 12-19.

Wednesday January 26

Michael O’Gorman gives an oral presentation on France.

France: some political, social and cultural realities – a centralized, national socio-political system in sharp contrast with the federal German system. The division of Europe and Germany becomes a done deal with the construction of the Berlin Wall. Meanwhile France and the Federal Republic of Germany pursue their policy of reconciliation under the leadership of President Charles de Gaulle and Chancellor Konrad Adenauer. Their relationship sets the tone for years to come. De Gaulle clashes with the Americans because of NATO, with the British because of the EEC and with his EEC partners because of the ambitions of the European Commission. Different notions of Europe appear. France's attempt to assume political leadership of the EEC triggers the first institutional crisis. Problems also arise outside Europe as the process of de-colonization goes on. Research main characteristics of Finland, Sweden and Austria in terms of geography, population, size of the economy and political regime. Read The Major Nation-States in the EU, chapter 2, pp. 12-21.

Monday January 30

John Stefanowicz gives an oral presentation on the United Kingdom.

The United Kingdom: more political, social and cultural notions. A sociopolitical system based on economic liberalism, in contrast with France and West Germany. Comparison of the three countries: three free market economies, three democratic systems, and yet three very different sociopolitical structures. The relationship between the EEC and the UK remains difficult. The end of the decade is marked by unrest in the West, especially in France and Belgium, tension in the East and crackdown in Prague. Western European hopes are crushed by Soviet determination and France remains suspicious of the U.S. and the U.K. More institutional problems divide the EEC on sovereignty and cooperation issues. Research the main characteristics of Norway, Switzerland, Slovenia and Poland in terms of geography, population, size of the economy and political regime. Also, read The Emerging European Union, Chapter 3, pp. 27-38.

Wednesday February 1

Basilio Bonilla gives an oral presentation on Spain.

Violent ethnic and linguistic conflicts trigger a political and social crisis in Belgium. In France, De Gaulle's departure opens the gate of the EEC to the U.K. For the first time, the EEC welcomes new members: the U.K., Denmark and Ireland. The Anglo-Saxons bring their own traditions, ideologies and values that translate into lasting consequences for the Community which takes on a new nature. Foreign policy and the country's relationship with the German Democratic Republic (Ostpolitik) create another political and social crisis in West Germany. Research the main characteristics of Estonia, Lithuania, Latvia and Hungary in terms of geography, population, size of the economy and political regime.

Monday February 6

Kevin O'Keefe gives an oral presentation on Greece and Portugal.

Meanwhile the oil crisis puts the brakes on economic growth and brings years of stagnation and inflation. The EEC tries to get its house organized economically but political nationalisms and cultural differences come in the way: some ideas but no momentum. Détente in the Cold War: the United States and the Soviet Union make a few rhetorical toasts and promises on the reduction of nuclear missiles. Greece, Portugal and Spain jettison their dictatorship and open up to democracy. The political prospects are brighter but economic realities remain bleak. Research the main characteristics of the Czech Republic, Slovakia, Bulgaria and Romania in terms of geography, population, size of the economy and political regime. Read The Emerging European Union, pp.38-44.

Wednesday February 8

First quiz

The late 1970's – early 1980's: the end of Détente. The Soviet invasion of Afghanistan increases the tension between East and West. It is followed by a crisis in Poland when a non-Communist workers' union Solidarity is created for the first time in a communist-dominated country. Reactions in Western Europe and in the Soviet Union add to the tension. The early 1980's: Greece becomes the 10th member of the EC. Political changes take place in France and Germany with good effects on the EEC and on the EMS. Problems, on the other hand, with the U.K. (the BBQ) and with the East (the Euro-missile crisis) show the necessity to strengthen the EEC. Research main characteristics of Iceland, Malta, Cyprus, Turkey, Belarus and Ukraine in terms of geography, population, size of the economy and political regime. Read The Emerging European Union, pp. 51-60, and The Major Nation-States in the EU, chapter 2, pp. 21-24..

Monday February 13

Ricardo Garcia and Daniel Vagnoni give an oral presentation on the institutions of the European Union.

The Institutions of the EEC: The Commission, its role, powers and prerogatives from Walter Hallstein to Jacques Delors. The Council of Ministers, an inter-governmental institution tries to remain in control in the midst of increasing necessity for more federal measures. The European Parliament and its first democratic election. A Parliament like no other one in the world: three sites and many official languages! Read Ever Closer

Union, pp. 259-278, 286-287. Read The Major Nation-States in the EU, chapter 3, pp. 42-46, and 49-52.

Wednesday February 15

Susanne Neher gives an oral presentation on Italy.

A new institution is created: the European Council, its purpose and its immediate effect on the day-to-day politics of the Community. The role of the Council of Ministers remains ambiguous: its meetings and its role in perpetuating the intergovernmental nature of the Community. Some other institutions: EMU, EMS. Read The Major Nation-States in the EU pp.46-49, The Emerging European Union pp. 84-88.

Monday February 20

The first paper is due

Cody Dapper gives an oral presentation on the European Single Act.

For the third time the EEC enlarges and the Ten become the Twelve as Spain and Portugal join the EEC. The Mediterranean culture penetrates the group and changes its nature. Jacques Delors becomes President of the European Commission and immediately starts rocking the boat. The Federal Republic assumes some leadership of the Community to the dismay of France but the partnership remains at its best. Gorbachev becomes General Secretary of the Soviet Union. The Single European Act re-launches the EEC. Read The Emerging European Union, pp. 47-59 and, as a review, chapter 6, pp. 92-100.

Wednesday February 22

Catherine Makovski gives an oral presentation on the role played by Poland, Czechoslovakia, Austria and Hungary in the fall of the Berlin Wall.

From the Single Act to the Treaty of Maastricht – this is a pivotal period in the history of the EC as economic growth returns. The road to Maastricht and preparation of the Maastricht Treaty seem smooth. 1988-1989 the “Velvet” Revolution sweeps Eastern Europe. A small incident in Hungary triggers a process that will lead to the fall of the Berlin Wall and to a complete re-drawing of the European political map. A previously unthinkable chain of events unfolds on a daily basis.

Monday February 27

Michelle Cardona gives an oral presentation on the German Democratic Republic and the fall of the Berlin Wall.

1989 the somewhat peaceful revolution in Eastern Europe suddenly reshapes the continent and eventually seals the fate of the Soviet Union. The impact on the EU is enormous and the relationship between the powers involved becomes more complicated. Some extra reading on this peaceful revolution will be assigned as well as on the German reunification and some of its immediate consequences within the EC. Read articles assigned in The Economist and The Emerging European Union, chapter 4, pp. 57-63.

Wednesday February 29

Second quiz

Spring recess

Monday March 12

Michelle Nutz gives an oral presentation on the reunification of Germany.

The peaceful revolution in Europe follows its course. The Union achieves undeniable success with economic integration but runs into increasing difficulties with regard to political integration. The will to integrate is there, but traditions and cultures remain hard to overcome. While uncertainty prevails in Russia, ethnic and religious conflicts flare up again in the Balkans, and war erupts in the ex-Yugoslavia with no reaction on the part of the EU. New states are born, adding to the already prevailing confusion. Are they viable politically and economically? Is the European Community becoming an economic monster and a political midget? Read The Emerging European Union, pp. 108-110 and The Major Nation-States in the EU, chapter 5 on France, pp.89-112,

Wednesday March 14

Jeff White gives an oral presentation on the Treaty of Maastricht.

The Maastricht Treaty and its painful ratification show the difficulty of political and social integration. Differences in cultural and historical values come in the way of political intentions as the EU needs to get ready for major changes. The treaty post-ratification period in the early 1990's show that many lessons are left to be learned. Meanwhile, the relationship between France and Germany is, once again, the focal point of the new Union. On the issue of EMU, economic stagnation in the EU makes monetary union more of a necessity. There is disappointment in Central and Eastern Europe because young democracies and fledgling capitalism do not deliver the goodies quickly enough. Read The Major Nation-States in the EU, chapter 6 on France and the EU, pp. 115-128.

Monday March 19

A crisis in the Union worsens due to its inability to put an end to the civil war in Yugoslavia. The Union really shows its absence of common policy and lack of initiative on international issues. The new enlargement to Austria, Finland and Sweden does not hide the problems but bring Scandinavian cultures and traditions into the Union. The Twelve are now the Fifteen. We take a look at the new members and at the need for institutional reforms, and preparation for the Amsterdam Treaty. Read The Major Nation-States in the EU, Chapter 7 on Germany, pp.139-159.

Wednesday March 21

From Maastricht to Amsterdam: with 15 members the new European Union needs flexibility and flexibility is born out of compromise. Once again, old nationalist traditions need to be overcome. Economic and monetary problems within the Union, EMU, the common currency and the (in)famous criteria add to the prevailing sense of uncertainty. Meanwhile a new Europe takes shape. Another issue that challenges traditions: the Common Agricultural Policy. Read The Major Nation-States in the EU, chapter 8 on Germany, pp. 163-181 and The Emerging European Union pp. 65-70.

Monday March 26

The Central and Eastern European countries come knocking at the door of the European Union. Can they join? Under what conditions? Are those conditions fulfilled and, if not, what needs to be done for them to fulfill them? How is their membership going to affect the dynamics of the Fifteen? The cacophony that prevailed during the preparation of the treaty of Nice is a good indication of the problems to come and of the difficulties to accommodate the future members. Read The Emerging European Union, pp. 70-77 and 110-116.

Wednesday March 28

Preparation for and implementation of the euro is another thorny issue. Discussions of the advantages and disadvantages of the single currency lead to more cacophony and uncertainty. Is the Union ready for a single currency? Some member states (the U.K. for example) want to keep their own currency and opt-outs have to be considered. Meanwhile, the next enlargement to Central and Eastern European countries call for urgent reforms. How can the institutions of the Union survive with 20 or 25 members? The Nice Treaty fails to deal with the situation and shows the difficulties of political integration. Read The Major Nation-States in the EU, chapter 9 on Italy, pp.187-208.

Monday April 2

The next enlargement to Central and Eastern European countries (cont.) requires a major effort from every member state. Can the Central European and Eastern European new democracies bridge the economic and cultural gaps that separate them from their Western counterparts? Some derogation from the treaty of Maastricht is inevitable and needs to be recognized. Can common political and economic aspirations reconcile cultural differences? Read The Emerging European Union, chapter 7, pp.116-123, and The Major Nation-States in the EU, chapter 10 on Italy, pp.212-229

Wednesday April 4

Third quiz

Compromise and new conditions come with the Copenhagen summit. Many questions are answered but many remain unanswered. In 2004 the EU has twenty five members and 27 in 2007. Turkey is still waiting in the wings and is becoming impatient. Should it join the EU? In fact, is Turkey even a European country? Why accept Turkey in the group and why reject Turkey? To answer those questions we need to take a look at the some of the relations of the EU with the rest of the world. It is a difficult question again because of differences among member-states. Read The Major Nation-States in the EU, Chapter 11 on the United Kingdom and Northern Ireland, pp.233-252.

Monday April 9

The American invasion of Iraq divides Europe, brings France and Germany closer together against American policy and damages the relations. Is there such a thing as Old and New Europe as former Secretary of Defense Donald Rumsfeld pretends? Are there other reasons why member-states of the EU were divided on the war in Iraq? Read The Emerging European Union, pp. 186-191.

Wednesday April 11

As the EU expands it is confronted with the worst economic crisis since the Great Depression. Just like the U.S, the EU is crumbling under an ever-growing national debt. The European reaction to the problem is very different from the American answer. The financial tremor starts in Greece, spreads to Ireland, Portugal, then Italy and Spain and finally France before threatening Germany, the U.S and the rest of the world. Deep disagreements appear among member-states and how can the EU reconcile them? Read The Emerging European Union, pp. 191-194, and The Major Nation-States in the EU, chapter 12 on the UK and Northern Ireland, pp.255-276.

The second paper is due today

Monday April 16

Amidst the economic crisis the EU is also confronted with much higher unemployment due to the relocation of many industries towards developing countries where labor is cheaper. At the same time the union must deal with the emerging countries and especially China. Can the aging European population remain competitive with the young Asian population? Can the EU remain competitive against the new economic blocks? We take a look at Japan and China and at the likely future trade problems. Read The Major Nation-States in the EU, chapter 13 on Spain, pp.281-299.

Wednesday April 18

Final question: what about the regions? Could the future of Europe be in the hands of the regions? Could it be the end of the nations in Europe? Could regionalisms replace old nationalisms? Integration and preservation of differences: the on-going double challenge. Is there any future for NATO, for a credible European defense policy, and for a European citizenship? Is there a European culture or just a mosaic of European cultures? Can there be a common foreign policy or just a common policy? Read The Major Nation-States in the EU, chapter 14 on Spain, pp. 302-317.

Wednesday April 25

Review and hopefully Q/A.

FINAL EXAM

COURSE POLICY

Attendance

Class attendance is mandatory and class participation is very highly encouraged. You must come to class prepared, with good knowledge of the material covered in the previous class, and of the reading assigned as homework. As a token of my good will you will be allowed to miss class twice (the equivalent of one week of work) with no question asked. Unpredicted situations can always happen and some tolerance is necessary. After two absences however you will need a serious note from your doctor (in case of illness) or from a person able to testify as to the seriousness of the situation. This, of course, excludes friends, roommates and neighbors, but not parents and College officials. Unless you have a very good reason for doing it, DO NOT ASK for make-ups.

After the two tolerated absences, further unexcused absences will be penalized and the final grade lowered. The student will be notified of her/his situation before the grade is lowered.

Grade assignment

There will be three hourly quizzes and two papers. The midterm grade will be determined by averaging the grade on the first quiz, the grade on the paper and the class participation. The final grade will include the average of the quizzes for 40%, the average of the papers for 25%, the final exam for 25%, and the class participation for 10%

Finally, be careful with plagiarism. Quoting from a book, journal, or some kind of website without indicating the source does constitute plagiarism and will be reported to the Dean's Office..

Social behavior

Remember also that a class is a social activity. As such, a few rules of social behavior must be respected.

I will not chew gum in class out of respect for you, and I expect the same from you in return. I will not wear a cap of any sort that might hide my face or part of it, and I also expect the same from you in return. To foster an environment conducive to learning all cellular phones will have to be turned off at the beginning of each class. Sending text messages during class will NOT be tolerated. If I see such activity going on I will confiscate the cell – I have done it in the past- and I will not hesitate to do it again. Also, there is no going back and forth to the bathroom, the water fountain or wherever during class because it is disturbing. Make sure you take your precautions before going to class. Finally, I want you to know that I will do my best to be on time and I expect you to do the same.

I wish you all a good, productive and pleasant semester.

Last recommendation

If you have a problem of whatever kind, please let me know early. Do NOT wait until the situation worsens. You are always welcome to stop by my office (Comenius 103) and to discuss whatever concern you may have.

Learning Disability Statement – Students who wish to request accommodations in this class for a disability should contact Mr. Joe Kempfer, Assistant Director of Learning Services for Disability Support, 1307 Main Street (extension 1510). Accommodations cannot be provided until authorization is received from the office of Learning Services.
